Adding Details from Dignitaries and Receptions Part I & II

Deb Houlding

This presentation introduces (and clarifies) the traditional philosophy and practical use of dignities and debilities in chart work, plus how, and in what circumstances, receptions become important. Starting from original principles, example charts are used to demonstrate how to judge the effect of aspects in more detail. What is the difference between harmonious aspects involving debilitated planets, and difficult aspects involving dignified planets? This level of detail allows the astrologer to judge whether a client should be advised to avoid an impending problem, or whether they should be encouraged to tackle it head-on, with the intention of surmounting it. Anyone who has ever struggled to understand why or how reception becomes important in aspectual contact will find this presentation highly illuminating and refreshingly simple. This will be especially suitable for beginners and intermediate levels of experience.

Time, the Combustion Cycle and the Symbolism of Celestial Phases

Deb Houlding

Astrology, whilst Earth-centred in perspective, has always been Sun-centred in philosophy. Ancient astrologers regarded the Sun as the central conductor of creativity; the generator of 'celestial light', which was moulded by planetary interaction to become a physically and spiritually effective influence. This talk explores the profoundly meaningful 'combustion cycle', presenting essential astrological details from which we understand the meaning of lunar and planetary phases, and discover a deep significance within humours and temperaments, and related concepts of 'stellar phenomena'.

Career Guidance with Horary

Deb Houlding

The prospects of career change are exciting, but they can provoke sleepless nights for those who fear stepping into the unknown, or who worry about damaging their livelihood. Reviewing the main considerations through modern case studies, this presentation demonstrates how horary offers both an overview and a detailed analysis of the pertinent matters upon which decisions must be made.

Eminence and Status Part I & II

Ben Dykes

Traditional astrologers looked at several dimensions to themes of eminence, status and conventional success and happiness. In this lecture, we will look at a number of nativities for evidence of eminence and success from a traditional perspective, and try to understand the differences between several significators: triplicity Lords, Lots, fixed stars, the Lot of Fortune, 'bodyguarding' or dusturiyyah, and the balance of benefics and malefics.

Models of Freedom and Determinism in Traditional Astrology

Ben Dykes

We will venture beyond the general 'freedom, fate, or both?' discussions of determinism in astrology, first reviewing some traditional discussions by philosophers and theologians who developed the theories of determinism and free will. Attendees will learn to discuss the interplay between ethics, determinism, freedom and astrology in a more sophisticated way. Is the notion of free will morally problematic? Could the chart be open-ended but the world deterministic? Learn some specific models for how astrology and the world may work.

Signs of the Times: Cancer, Diabetes, Heart Disease and Chronic Disorders Part I & II

Jane Ridder-Patrick

Why does this particular person have this particular ailment at this particular time? How can astrology help us pinpoint health vulnerabilities and stay well, or speed recovery if we do become ill? Using both traditional and modern techniques and the insights provided by case studies, we will explore these questions in depth with the focus on some of the most common chronic conditions in modern times.

In Sickness and in Health: Saturn and Neptune

Jane Ridder-Patrick

As astrological principles, Saturn and Neptune are almost polar opposites. Each rules its own system of psychological pathology as well as healing potential. We will trace through each zodiac sign the life challenges, anatomical areas and physical problems linked with each of these planets and discover health-promoting activities for prevention and healing.

The Cardinal Cross

Jane Ridder-Patrick

Each of the crosses is associated with characteristic psychological profiles and a spectrum of related symptoms. Using cases studies, in this lecture we will examine the medical conditions most commonly found in the cardinal signs and investigate the likely effects and possible correctives during the time that three of the heavyweight planets move through the cardinal cross - Saturn through Libra, Uranus through Aries and Pluto through Capricorn.

Exploring the Midheaven

Frank Clifford

The Midheaven (MC) has much to say about our reputation, aspirations, the public image we wish to project and, as part of an axis, our parental inheritance. Astrologically, our MC complex shows our personal definition of success, and we can gain recognition when we adopt the role described by it. This talk will offer new insights and explore the many meanings of this much-neglected horoscope point.

Solar Arc Directions: Tracking Your Life Story

Frank Clifford

Often at times of major life events and developments, our natal charts are more activated by Solar Arc Directions than by transits or progressions. Solar Arc is an invaluable, easy to master forecasting (and rectification) tool that often amazes clients and students with its clarity and simplicity. If you can count, you can use Solar Arc! In this lecture, Frank will share how to get the most from Directions and how to identify landmark periods in life. He will also introduce his work on 'shadow transits', which gives astrologers a tool to link seemingly unrelated life events.

Vocational Arousal: Get Your Clients Going with A Vocational Profile to Fit the Times

Faye Cossar

How often do you hear from your clients: 'There's lots of uncertainty. I feel at a crossroads?' 'What are my choices?' or 'I doubt my ability. Should I change course?' By using vocational profiling and key parts of the horoscope, Faye will show how to help clients discover the types of work that suit them. You may also pinpoint your own work style, strengths and talents. Making use of a career counseling framework and case studies, Faye will focus on how to identify talents and spot profession. She'll also discuss the idea of creating a lasting career profile using the chart.

Love is Never Blind: The People Who Change You

Ed Tamplin

One of the most oft-asked questions to a professional astrologer is 'Will I find true love and when?' But love can also be a many-ended thing, with the nature of relationship encompassing more than the original question intended. Soul connection often comes when we least expect it. This presentation analyses the astrological components of attraction and the inner dynamics of relationship within the individual horoscope, it explores how, when and why we end up in relationships, using charts of the famous, such as John Lennon and Errol Flynn, and also some working horoscopes from compliant clients.

Understanding Neptunian Sensitivity

Christine Rothwell

Neptune's ingress into Pisces suggests we are being called on to find a way to embrace the Neptunian archetype, which can be both a blessing and a curse. Neptunian feeling can manifest as intuitive gifts, compassion and sensitivity to others' needs, as well as anxiety, co-dependency, escapism and a multitude of stress-related physical symptoms including fatigue, digestive problems, allergies and auto-immune disorders. This lecture explores Neptunian sensitivity from an astrological perspective and looks at ways to honour and work constructively with this archetype for ourselves and our clients.

Primal Time: The Prenatal Origins of the Zodiac

Melanie Reinhart

This lecture draws on the work of Frances J Mott to explore the symbolism of 'biological time' inherent in the zodiac, which can be seen as the 'spiritual womb' that contains and nurtures our soul's development from conception onwards through birth and death. An understanding of prenatal dynamics also sheds an intriguing new light on familiar mythic themes.

The Timeless Journey of the Soul

Clementine Adkins

Lunar memory contains moods and attitudes formed throughout a lifetime of experiences on planet earth. While we tend to lose factual information about our time here on earth, emotional memory is something that survives the trauma of death and rebirth. All planets have nodes and the south node is the one usually referred to as 'of the past'. The Lunar South Node then has the distinction of holding our emotional memories. Using techniques learnt through Steven Forrest and Jeff Wolf Green's evolutionary astrology schools, this lecture focuses on the role of Pluto and the Lunar Nodes as the first indicators of an individual's soul journey. We also explore possible past life scenarios that are still being played out in the present lifetime.

Are You Male or Female? Don't Be So Sure!

Michael Lutin

Don't kid yourself. There's a gender war going on and it hasn't even begun. Currently we are dealing with the ever present issue of dominance and submission in every relationship. The trick is to be able to accept what turns you on and live with it.

Time to Emerge: The Challenges, Contradictions and Paradoxes of the New Moon

Frith Luton

In this lecture we will explore the challenges, contradictions and paradoxes in the lunar cycle, with a particular emphasis on the New Moon, in both the natal and progressed horoscope. This in-depth exploration of the symbolism and psychology of the New Moon will focus on the significance of its timing in our lives and the direction and potentials indicated by its interaction with our birth chart.
